

The Safeguard New Zealand Workplace Health and Safety Awards were held last night and I am very proud that Spencer Henshaw was a finalist in the Engagement category. SHL was nominated for the work we do with our contacting network in co-constructing safe work systems and embedding authentic health and safety cultures.

Being a finalist was a great achievement for Ben and his Health and Safety team. I also acknowledge and thank everyone else who contributed to the initiatives that enabled SHL's nomination and that resulted in our being one of the three finalists – a podium finish and a proud moment!

The other nominees in the Engagement category were Air New Zealand and Hancock Forest Management NZ. The Engagement category award was won by Air New Zealand which also took out the supreme award for their entry.

It was an inspiring night hearing all the initiatives being put in place by organisations to improve health, safety and wellbeing outcomes for their people.
